Security Alert Regarding Suspicious E-mail Using Zeon's Name

Zeon Corporation

Zeon Corporation has confirmed incidents involving a suspicious e-mail message purportedly sent from the company's domain and directed to the e-mail accounts of employees.

The suspicious e-mail appears to report that the company's previous bank account has been closed and that the recipient should provide information to register under a new bank account. Neither Zeon Corporation nor Zeon Group companies have any association with this e-mail.

Zeon has already informed the recipients that the message is spam and that no changes have been made to the corporate bank accounts. It is possible, however, that similar messages may be falsely attributed to Zeon or its employees in the future.

In the event that you receive an e-mail attributed to Zeon that appears suspicious in any way, including questionable senders, subject lines, or content, do not respond to the message. Make sure to file an inquiry with the company by contacting the staff member in charge or by using the contact form on the Zeon corporate website.
